

Cohasset Jewelers

Celebrating "Best Of" Awards

Best of Boston 2011

When owner Mark Cirone's wife was battling cancer, he created a "Labor of Love" pin, which raised more than $60,000 for the couple's local hospital. And if that doesn't make you want to shop at his store, your heart is harder than diamonds. Of course, an eye popping collection of gems and watches help, and Cohasset has them in spades.

Best of South Shore Living 2010

Winning awards is getting to be a habit for this family run jewelry store in Cohasset. It is a pleasure just to walk in and see the sparkling gems, elegant watches and unique gifts, but it is also a rewarding experience to work with their staff who are true professionals and are experienced and helpful.

Best of South Shore Living 2009

This is now a bona fide South Shore gem. A family owned business that was in the Jeweler's building in downtown Boston for 30 years, moved to Cohasset and truly lives up to the owners' promise of "Surprisingly Affordable, Quality Jewelry". What also sets them apart is that a lot of the jewelry is made on the premises, and they have a fine collection of heirloom estate jewelry.

Best of Boston 2008

No two diamonds are alike -- and yet so much jewelry looks exactly like what she's wearing, dammit! Uncover flashes of originality at Cohasset Jewelers, a family business well into its third decade. Bench jeweler Don Cirone (who co-owns the store with his brother Mark) crafts most of the highly covetable wares on-site, as well as made-to-order custom pieces. For guaranteed one-of-a-kind wonders, plunder the strong estate section of the annual blowout sale in August.

---

Best of Boston 2007

With online wholesalers operating round the clock and big-box retailers claiming their slice of the bauble trade, you can buy jewelry almost anywhere, anytime, these days, unless, that is, your gift needs to transcend the mere trinket. In that case, you're going to want a more personal shopping experience before you surrender a few months' salary.

And that's just what's provided by the friendly faces at Cohasset Jewelers, which has been helping its customers choose just the right piece for more than 75 years. Not only is its cache of new and estate jewelry stunning to behold, it's priced beautifully, too.

South Shore Living Magazine - Best Jeweler 2007

Many of the sparkling pieces on display in this elegant showroom are manufactured on the premises. The family-owned business has been in operation for over 75 years and it shows: the staff is experienced and extremely courteous.

In addition to crafting high-quality pieces, the store carries an exceptional collection of fine estate jewelry that includes gems from famous makers such as Cartier, Tiffany and Rolex.

South Shore Living Magazine - Best Jeweler 2006

This family owned store is a South shore gem. Offering jewels designed by SimonG, Charles Garnier, and Michael Good. Cohasset Jewelers also strives to offer much of its selection at discounted prices -- the store is able to offer as much as 50% off of jewelry and gifts from some manufacturers. Perhaps the biggest draw to the store is the spectacular collection of estate jewelry where you will find one-of-a-kind pieces by Cartier, Tiffany, and Rolex.

---

Best of Boston 2005

Looking for a bright bauble or some elegant antique jewelry? Check out this family-owned shop for Charles Garnier diamond loop earrings, icy SimonG wedding bands, Nomination charm bracelets, and contemporary Michael Good necklaces. The impressive estate collection includes Edwardian peridot brooches, Cartier engagement rings, and Victorian-era earrings.

---